

What are different Filters used in Airconditioners ?

The different filters used in air conditioners are rubberised coir filters or woven / unwoven polyester or polypropylene filter media. These materials have an efficiency less than 85% at 20 microns particle size. This would be just adequate for filtering heavy pollen and plant spores, coarse dust or suspended particles.